22. [ ] BRIEFING Accompanied [ ] [ ] OMS, to brief Representative Bob Wilson (R., Calif.) and his Administrative Assistant, Ed Terrar, on psychological profiles of terrorists. Mr. Wilson seemed to thoroughly enjoy and appreciate the briefing and he now has a reasonably thorough grip on what is and what is not being done on terrorism. The briefing took place in Mr. Wilson's office in 2307 Rayburn House Office Building.

23. [ ] LIAISON Professor G. Robert Blakey, Chief Counsel and Director, House Select Committee on Assassinations, called to advise that the Committee strongly confirmed its position that the Agency not lift the moratorium on destruction of documents until the Committee goes out of existence on 31 December 1978. He said that he talked to a representative of the Archivist and the Archivist will suspend his order that the Agency resume destruction. Blakey said that he will be sending a letter to the Agency from Chairman Louis Stokes (D., N.Y.) to this effect.
I notified [ ] DDA, of the call.

24. [ ] LIAISON Called John Nields, House Standards of Official Conduct Committee staff, concerning his inquiry for further information from CIA concerning the reported possible unethical conduct of a Member of the House International Relations Subcommittee on International Organizations (Fraser Subcommittee). Nields had received a blind memorandum on this matter, which he knew to be prepared by the CIA, included in the material that the Justice Department had forwarded to the Speaker for consideration of any action by the House.
Nields has continually claimed that he knows positively that the Agency has other information other than that which was provided to the House. I had earlier indicated to him that the Agency had no further information of direct interest to the Committee other than that provided to Justice. I also explained that Representative Lee Hamilton (D., Ind.), a member of the Committee, had called [ ] and will be handling this matter personally. Nields agreed that he would defer his inquiry until a meeting can be scheduled between [ ] and Mr. Hamilton.
